1) Why do I need a Web Site?

A web site is an additional form of communication between yourself, your existing clients, and possible new clients. It's like having a 24 hour telephone line combined with a company sales brochure that can be updated quickly. It's also surprisingly cost effective.

2) How much will my project cost? It is difficult to say that every brochure will cost this much or every web site will cost that much. Project prices will vary from job to job. What we can do is to sit down with you in an initial meeting (which is free of charge) and tailor a project that will fit your needs as well as your budget.

3) Will my customers look for me on the Internet?

With our assistance, your company web site will be registered with all the top search engines and online directories, so there's a good chance that both new and existing customers will look for you. Would you prefer that they found your competitors details?

4) I am not local to you, can we still do business?

Yes. Tools such as e-mail, faxes, telephones, and delivery services such as the post office and FedEx allow us to do business with virtually anyone, anytime, anywhere.

5) I have a web site, but I'm not happy with it. Can you help me?

Yes. We can streamline your site to load faster, make it more visible in major search engines, tweak it slightly to fix your concerns or completely redesign it from the ground up. It's all up to you.

6) My friend says he can build me a web site, Why shouldn't I just use him?

That may be the case, but will s/he put a great deal of thought into its design? Will they resolve problems when you need them to? Will the site load quickly? Will they resolve problems when you need them to?
